«Bei Perkins, unserem liebsten Frühstücksrestaurant, kam manchmal der Oberkellner an den Tisch, um Mamaw zu ermahnen, leiser zu sprechen und nicht zu fluchen. «So ein Arschloch, zischte sie dann. Sie fühlte sich nicht mehr wohl und ass bedrückt weiter.

Aber in Bill's Family Diner, dem einzigen Restaurant in Jackson, in dem man ein ordentliches Essen bekam, rief sie in die Küche hinein, dass sie sich «verdammt noch mal beeilen sollten, und die Köche lachten nur und sagten: Okay, Bonnie.»

Bill's Family Dinner. Am 18. Nov. 2005 nachts abgebrannt, 18. Sept.2013 endgültig demoliert: Es gab dort Schweinsfilet, Steaks und Wels

MIDDLETOWN: Dillman Foods to close by Jan. 4, 2014

Steve Dillman said he kept the family grocery store open as long as possible.

The Dillman family, which has been in the grocery business for 87 years in Middletown, is closing its final store on Central Avenue. “I never thought this would happen,” said Dillman, a third-generation grocer. He said other business owners in Middletown have seen the same downward trend.

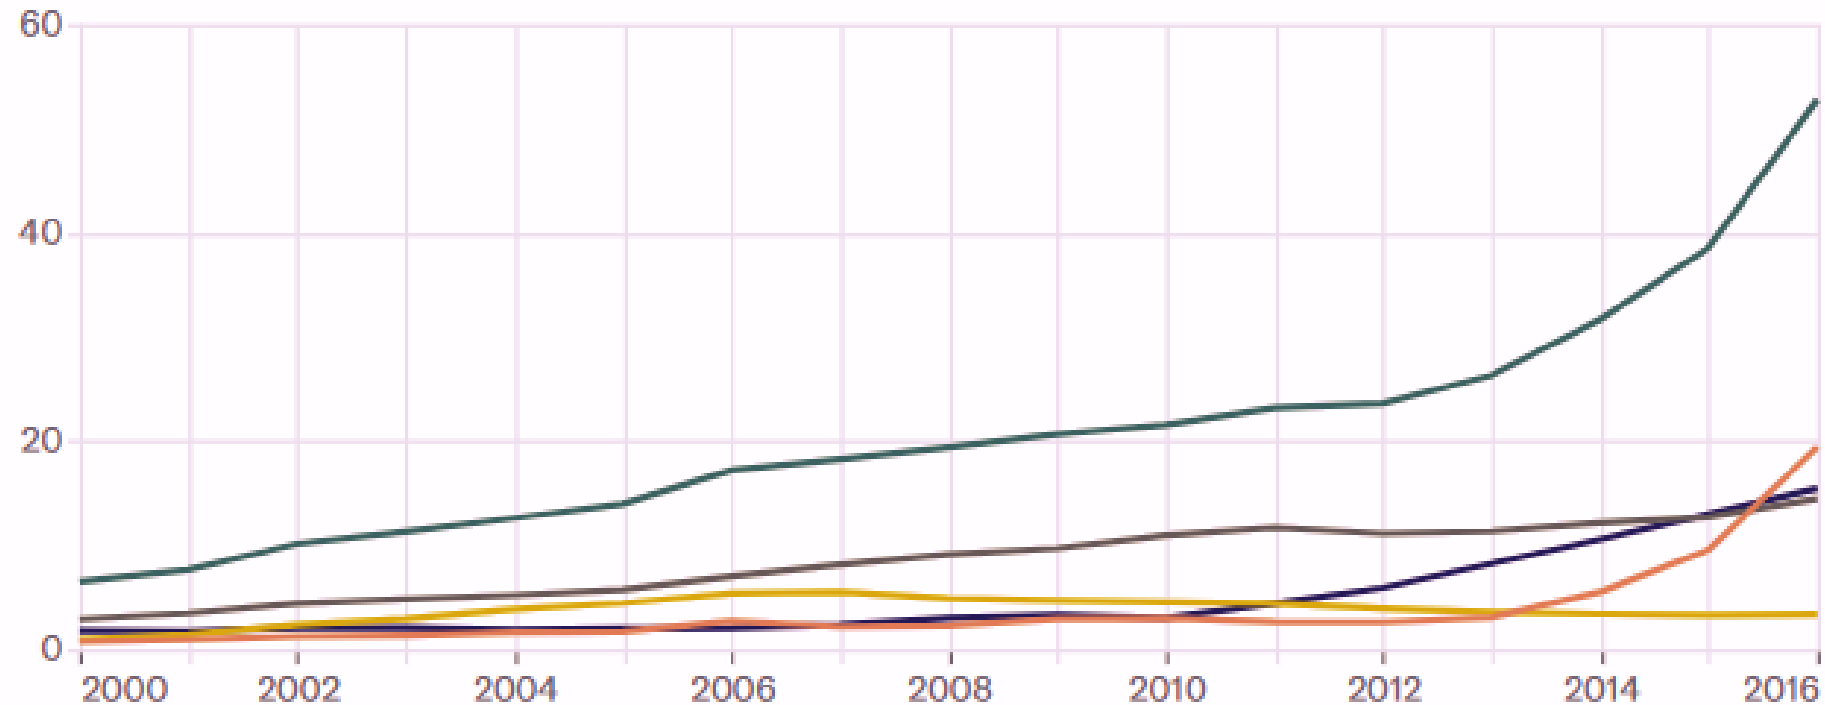

Middletown, he said, isn’t the same city it was decades ago. During an 18-month period, between 2010 to 2011, there were three armed robberies in the stores: two at Dillman’s on Central Avenue and one at Save-A-Lot on Roosevelt Boulevard. In the previous 20 years, he said, there were no robberies in the stores.

DWIGHT YOAKAM

Kentucky's
US 23

Country Music Highway

Readin', Rightin', Route 23 (Dwight Yoakam 1987)

They learned readin', writin', Route 23 to the jobs that lay waiting in those cities' factories

They didn't know that old highway could lead them to a world of misery

Have you ever been down Kentucky-way say south of Prestonburg

Have you ever been up in a holler

Have you ever heard a mountain man cough his life away

From diggin' that black coal in those dark mines, those dark mines

If you had you might just understand the reason that they left it all behindP

They learned readin', writin', Route 23 to the jobs that lay waiting in those cities' factories

They learned readin', writin', roads to the north to the luxury and comfort a coal miner can't afford

They thought readin', writin', Route 23 would take them to the good life that they had never seen

They didn't know that old highway could lead them to a world of misery

Have you ever seen them, put the kids in the car after work on Friday night

Pull up in a holler about 2 a.m and see a light still shinin' bright

Those mountain folks sat up that late, just to hold those little grandkids in their arms, in their arms

And I'm proud to say that I've been blessed and touched by their sweet hillbilly charm

They learned readin', writin', Route 23 to the jobs that lay waiting in those cities' factories

They learned readin', writin', roads to the north to the luxury and comfort a coal miner can't afford

They thought readin', writin', Route 23 would take them to the good life that they had never seen

They didn't know that old highway could lead them to a world of misery

Yeah, it turns out that that old highway leads you to a world of misery

Resilienz = psychische Widerstandsfähigkeit

(von lateinisch resilire ‚zurückspringen‘ ‚abprallen‘)

Fähigkeit, Krisen zu bewältigen und sie durch Rückgriff auf persönliche und sozial vermittelte Ressourcen als Anlass für
Entwicklungen zu nutzen

«Viel von dem, was ich früher gegessen hatte, lief den Tüchtigkeitsstandards der Marines zuwider. In Mamaws Haus wurde alles, von Hühnchenteilen über Tomaten bis zu eingelegten Gurken, gebraten oder frittiert.»

«Gedeckter Brombeer-Cobbler, den ich früher für gesund gehalten hatte, wie jede andere Kombination aus Obst und Getreide, hatte seinen Glanz verloren.»
